'I betrayed their trust': Ex-Scouts volunteer

Sentencing hearing. Crown wants six to eight years, defence asks for three

LUCY SCHOLEY
lucy.scholey@metronews.ca

A former Scouts Canada volunteer guilty of luring and molesting boys apologized for his behaviour in court on Thursday.

"Who I am hates who've I've been and what I've done," said 31-year-old Scott Stanley, reading a speech from a piece of paper. He called himself a "man who has made several mistakes" and did not act responsibly towards his victims — four boys aged 12 to 15.

"I not only failed them and their family, but I also failed them as friends and I betrayed their trust," he said.

Last June, he pleaded guilty to sexual interference, luring and invitation to sexual touching between 2012 and 2013. Stanley was also a former City of Ottawa lifeguard and swim coach.

Crown prosecutor Suzanne Schriek is asking for a six- to eight-year prison sentence. She told court Stanley's actions — kissing, touching and sending explicit text messages to the boys — was "highly manipulative" and "highly intrusive."

"His conduct is that of a sexual predator," she said.

Defence lawyer Brett McGarry is asking for three years in prison, with credit for time served. That would land Stanley another two years behind bars. McGarry is also seeking three years probation for his client.

Stanley will "punish himself for the rest of his life," said McGarry, and time in a provincial jail could offer the rehabilitation he needs. Stanley has taken responsibility for his actions and is seeking treatment, he added.

His risk of re-offence is low to moderate, McGarry said, adding that Stanley has no criminal record or substance abuse issues. The court previously heard the incidents took place in a car on the way to Scout camp and while sitting on a log around the campfire. None of the victims can be named under a publication ban.

Stanley, who was wearing a collared black and grey T-shirt, would occasionally glance at his parents, who were sitting in the courtroom.

Ontario Court Justice Heather Perkins-McVey said she will sentence Stanley Oct. 29.

Scott Graham Stanley, centre, leaves the Ottawa courthouse in July 2013 with his mom and stepfather after being released on bail following several sexual-assault-related charges. JOE LOFARO/METRO FILE

Burger photo op becomes political shot for Mayor

Bank Street joint.

Watson orders 12 burgers, doesn't miss chance to talk to voters

TREVOR GREENWAY
trevor.greenway@metronews.ca

Jim Watson is determined to win the Ottawa burger poll at Burgers n' Fries Forever.

The Ottawa mayor walked into the Bank Street burger joint and ordered a dozen Watson LRT (lettuce, red onion, tomato) burgers for him and his hungry campaign team Thursday.

The big order put him ahead of mayoral candidate Anwar Syed's spicy jalapeno burger. The score was 28-22 Watson vs. Syed for Metro's not-so-scientific political poll by 5:59 p.m.

"I could eat another one of these," said Watson after devouring his custom mayor burger (Watson doesn't like onion).

But before biting into his lunch, the incumbent mayor bit into some city issues with Metro and other residents sitting nearby.

"First and foremost, (voters) want us to move forward with our light rail transit plan; they are not interested in having the reset button pushed again," said Watson, bringing up former mayor Larry O'Brien's decision to cancel the north-south light rail project,

The burger poll so far

- Jim Watson: 28
- Anwar Syed: 22
- Darren Wood: 9
- Mike Maguire: 7
- Bernard Couchman: 4
- Robert White: 3

which cost taxpayers $36 million in penalties.

"We have got a plan, let's stick to it and deliver it on time and on budget, which is what we are doing."

On the campaign trail, Watson said most people say speeding on residential streets is an issue.

He wants to target that problem, as well as clean up the Ottawa River and see community parks get renovated over the next four-year term. He also joked it's "always important" for the Ottawa Senators to make the playoffs every year.

Watson's opponent Darren Wood has missed both of the mayoral debates — one because he was "helping some old people with a broken elevator," and the another because he had the flu.

But even if he was available, he may not have attended, as "debates are a waste of time."

at a restaurant talking to people than you do at a debate," said the 54-year-old part-time wedding officiant.

But he didn't bother to chat up any of the patrons eating lunch next to him. In fact, almost every mayoral candidate that has lunched with Metro at Burgers N' Fries Forever barely bothered to say hello to patrons.

But Watson was asking everyone in the store what burger they were getting after shaking their hand

Wood says he wants to bring back weekly garbage pickup, as well as council to "buy out" the existing Orgaworld contract and pass a transparency act to allow residents to become "the 24th councillor at the table."

Ottawa heads to the polls Oct. 27.

Tweed weed interim CEO eyes possible expansion

Tweed Marijuana Inc.
Interim CEO aims to open medical marijuana facilities in a few European countries

Just as news broke of Tweed Marijuana Inc.'s co-founder and former CEO resigning from its board of governors, company chairman Bruce Linton told a crowd at Carleton University the medical marijuana provider is considering expanding operations in Europe.

In a statement issued Thursday morning, the company said Chuck Rifci was resigning effective immediately and thanked him for his service.

Linton took over as interim CEO after Rifci stepped down from the position last month.

But corporate structure was not the topic of his presentation to business executives and students at the Sprott Talks Event at Carleton.

It was more of a coming-of-age story about how the company — which began operating last spring at the abandoned Hershey Chocolate factory in Smiths Falls — has grown from a company of three or four people to a company that has raised $28 million in capital funding.

"We're on the cusp of being able to be the biggest producer and supplier of medical marijuana in Canada," said Linton.

The company refurbished a 360,000-square-foot facility in Niagara Falls into a greenhouse in June. Now, Linton has his eyes set on opening medical marijuana facilities in countries such as Czech Republic and Romania where he said laws are loosening around producing the drug.

"The opportunity is to be the best in Canada. And when you're the best in Canada, there's no reason we can't be the best in other countries that need what we do," he said.

Part of the success that catapulted Tweed in the marijuana business is jumping on a business opportunity that was untapped, Linton said.

"At the beginning of this it was an obvious disruption of the supply chain and opening the market and a chance to do it. The only reason I almost didn't do it was because you have to explain to people, like my parents and everybody, I'm going to be a chairman of a marijuana company," he said.

"If you're sure there's an opportunity that's unveiling itself and others haven't seen it because maybe they're worried about the reaction, like, double down. Do it." JOE LOFARO/METRO

Canada Council Art Bank opens the vault

A rare chance. Canada's largest contemporary art collection will be open to the public for one day

trevor.greenway@metronews.ca

Vicki Henry wants to show off her 13,000-piece art collection worth $71 million.

The Director of the Canada Council Art Bank is opening up the organization's doors for one day only this Saturday to show off 42 years of collecting contemporary Canadian Art.

The feature display will exhibit artists who have ties to the national capital region, but art lovers will have full run of the art bank's 30,000 square foot art storage tank featuring all types of art pieces from large sculptures to interactive and mixed media art pieces.

"Right now, the place is so dynamic that I can hardly have a conversation with anybody," said Henry, while giving Metro a sneak peek of the space.

"You are walking through and there is fabulous artwork, one after the other, it's just gorgeous."

Since it opened 42 years ago, the art bank has been sprucing up government buildings and corporate offices across the country — turning dull, boring offices into lively, engaging spaces that provoke conversations and thought.

Henry has watched phenomenal artwork pass through the art bank over the last 15 years and every time a new piece is rented out, she cracks into a smile — proud that everyday Canadians are gaining access to the incredible talent of painters and sculptors across the country.

"Art starts a conversation," said Henry.

"If you have a work that is really inviting and engaging and somewhat provocative, you can actually have someone come into your office and it will completely break the ice before you have to start into any kind of serious conversation."

This weekend's exhibition coincides with Culture Days and runs from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The event is free.

Several paintings and other art media will be on display for the Art Bank's Culture Days exhibit. TREVOR GREENWAY/METRO

Scorching Fury set to face league leaders Minnesota United at TD Place

Ottawa Fury FC have quietly become one of the hottest teams in the NASL and will welcome the league-leading Minnesota United at TD Place Sunday.

Coming off a perfect road trip having recorded two victories, the Fury put the expansion team back in the thick of the NASL playoff race.

Ottawa will need to translate their road successes into home wins as the Fury are still winless at the new TD Place.

Minnesota have already clinched a playoff spot and will lean on league leading goal scorer Christian Ramirez for their offensive punch. The Fury, meanwhile, will rely on stellar keeper Romuald Peiser who hasn't conceded a single goal in the last two games.

Kickoff is scheduled for 3 p.m. Sunday afternoon.

Winnipeg police are looking into why the 15-year-old was not taken into custody

Winnipeg police confirmed Thursday that two officers came across Tina Fontaine the day before she disappeared and one week before her body was pulled from the Red River. Fontaine, 15, was in a vehicle police pulled over on Aug. 8, more than a week after she was reported missing, but she was not taken into custody.

Police set up a news conference to respond to a report from CTV that said Fontaine was a passenger in a vehicle along with a man who was arrested on suspicion of being impaired. "The two officers have been reassigned to non-operational duties," police Chief Devon Clunis said.

"What's particular in this case is my client is the victim and not the aggressor, contrary to the cases in the United States," said defence lawyer Steve Hanafi, referring to a spate of domestic violence cases involving NFL players.

Hanafi said the university was too hasty in suspending

Guimont-Mota from the football team and that he and his client would challenge the decision.

Just 'digging around' in N. Korean prison

Matthew Miller. U.S. man sentenced to six years of hard labour says he mostly does agricultural work

An American man recently sentenced by North Korea to six years of hard labour says he is digging in fields eight hours a day and being kept in isolation, but that so far his health isn't deteriorating.

Under close guard and with only enough time to answer one question, 24-year-old Matthew Miller spoke briefly to The Associated Press at a Pyongyang hotel where he had been brought to call his family.

It was his first appearance since he was convicted Sept.

14 of entering the country illegally to commit espionage.

"Prison life is eight hours of work per day. Mostly it's been agriculture, like in the dirt, digging around," Miller said when asked what conditions were like in prison.

"Other than that, it's isolation, no contact with anyone. But I have been in good health, and no sickness or no hurts," he said, showing little emotion.

At Miller's 90-minute trial, North Korea's Supreme Court said Miller tore up his tourist visa upon arriving in Pyongyang on April 10 and declared his ambition to experience prison life so he could secretly investigate North Korea's human rights situation.

Miller is one of three Americans detained in North Korea. Jeffrey Fowle, who was arrested in May for leaving a Bible at a sailor's club, is expected to be tried in court soon. Kenneth Bae was sentenced in 2013 to 15 years of hard labour.

Last week, Robert King, the U.S. special envoy for North Korean human rights issues, said Pyongyang has not accepted American offers to send a high-level envoy to seek release of the three men.

Ferguson. Brown's body lay on street too long, police chief admits

Cartel leader's nephew acquitted

A Mexican court has ordered the release of the nephew of deceased Sinaloa drug cartel leader Ignacio Coronel because of procedural violations. Officials had portrayed the man as his

Tiger killed in fight with younger male cat at zoo

Gate left unlocked. Fatal altercation begins while visiting students look on

A group of high school students got a real-life lesson in wild animal behaviour Thursday when they witnessed part of a fatal fight between two tigers at a Winnipeg zoo.

Officials with the Assiniboine Park Zoo said an older Siberian male tiger pushed open a mistakenly unlocked gate and stepped into a neighbouring den housing two younger male cats.

One of the younger tigers then attacked the older one and, although the fight took place at the rear of the enclosure, it happened in view of any visitors who happened to be at the tiger exhibit.

Margaret Redmond, president of the Assiniboine Zoo Conservancy, told reporters that the students were on a class trip with a teacher.

No visitors were in any danger at any time, she said, and a review of the incident is underway.

The zoo's chief veterinarian, Dr. Chris Enright, said the 19-year-old tiger who died was named Baikal and had been at the zoo for about five years. The neighbouring den houses a pair of younger tigers, two-year-old brothers named Samkha and Vasili.

Vasili, the one who killed Baikal, was likely defending his turf, said Enright.

"Any tiger — they're a 350-pound predator — has the potential to act aggressively in defence of itself," he said. METRO

Napoleon is now back with his Antosia.

The two amorous donkeys who were separated because of an outcry over their love-making have been reunited at a zoo in Poland.

The couple, together for 10 years, got into trouble when mothers expressed outrage that children had to witness their mating. Local conservative official Lydia Dudziak took up their cause and persuaded the director of the zoo in Poznan to have the animals put in separate pens.

The zoo acknowledged making a mistake Thursday and said the donkeys are again in one pen after about a week apart. "It was never our intention for any animals to feel uncomfortable because of their natural behaviours," the zoo said in a statement.

The interruption of the long-standing romance turned into a national news item in Poland in the past days. Nearly 7,000 people signed a petition to have them reunited.

Experts weighed in, saying the separation could hurt their psychological well-being. Politicians were asked about it on the country's leading news programs.

In their decade together, Napoleon and Antosia have produced six offspring.

Gambler saved from prison by a one-armed bandit

Police said Thursday that two officers carrying out routine checks at an arcade in Bochum, Germany, late last week discovered that a man playing a slot machine faced an arrest warrant.

He had been ordered to pay a 710-euro ($1,005) fine or go to prison for 71 days after resisting police during a previous incident.

Police said that as officers informed the man that he faced arrest, the slot machine started to flash and the 37-year-old won a jackpot of 1,000 euros. The man paid his fine on the spot — in cash. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Scotiabank Toronto Waterfront Marathon takes over the majority of the downtown as 25,000 runners take part in October 2013. RICK MADONIK/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Who will win the race? After a slow start, the running event biz has hit its stride — but now it's do-or-die time for organizers scrapping it out

melissa.dunne@metronews.ca

A sea of hipsters wait in T-shirts, headbands and sunglasses. Soon, their bright white shirts will look like the inside of a Skittles bag.

They look pleased. After all, most paid about $60 a pop to be popped with brightly coloured powder during a five-kilometre run earlier this month in downtown Vancouver.

Across town, another sea of runners in rainbow-bright clothes and shoes are readying for a timed 10-km road race.

It's clearly do-or-die time for running event organizers scrapping it out in the booming running events business.

It wasn't always this way.

Back in 1963 at Calgary's first marathon, a mere 19 men showed up, and only 12 finished. This year, more than 15,000 people took part. In 1975, 144 men and two women ran Ottawa's marathon. This May, 4,436 men and 2,599 women ran the marathon. And overall, 47,827 people participated in six events during Ottawa Race Weekend.

It's the same story coast-to-coast. While it took years for traditional road races to slowly build up their events, new events seem to have quickly sprinted to the head of the pack.

The Color Run, LLC held its first event in Arizona in 2012.

Charity

- Some for-profit runs, like the Canada Running Series, have a separate non-profit foundation. Others donate a small amount of money to charity directly.
- But the majority of money for charity via runs (whether a non-profit or not) is raised by individual runners.

In 2013, the for-profit company hosted roughly 170 events in more than 30 countries.

The Color Run (which has not added a "u" in deference to our spelling) held five events in Canada in 2013. This year, it grew to eight events, and plans to expand again next year.

About 60 per cent of participants in the untimed "fun runs" are first-time runners, according to a Color Run spokesperson.

The for-profit Tough Mudder LLC tends to attract more seasoned runners. Since it started in 2010, more than 100 Tough Mudders have been held around the globe. The 18- to 20-km events include obstacles such as: mud, freezing-cold ice, electricity and fire. A cross-section of CrossFitters, gym rats and runners in Canada have plunked down about $139.99 to $199.99 (plus fees and taxes) to take part in the gruelling event. In 2012, the business co-founded by a Harvard Business School grad brought in $70 million US in revenue, according to New York Magazine.

Alan Brookes, the director of the Canada Running Series Inc., is not worried about all the new competition.

"We're passionate believers in doing one thing well," says Brookes from Vancouver, where he was hosting the Vancouver Eastside 10K. "We are sticking to the traditional, complete road race and leaving the mud and colour to others."

The for-profit Canada Running Series holds a total of eight races in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver every year. Its marquee event, the Scotiabank Toronto Waterfront Marathon (STWM), has hit its stride — celebrating 25 years this year and on pace to hit record numbers of participants.

The STWM began as the Coors Light Toronto Half-Marathon — part of a "six-pack" of races in a nod to the sponsor.

In 1990, about 1,500 people took part. In the last five years the number of participants at the STWM (which now includes a 5-km run, half-marathon and full marathon) has risen almost 400 per cent, with about 25,000 expected on Oct. 19.

Lately, it's condo-dwelling millennials of both genders that are pushing the phenomenal growth, Brookes says.

And companies are jockeying for a prominent spot at these events so they can market their product or brand to the swelling crowds of young, fit and well-heeled runners. Brands have such a strong presence that some runs look like NASCAR races.

Being a part of these feel-good events is worth a lot to companies.

In 2008, Richard Branson's group paid about $30 million in a five-year deal to sponsor London's not-for-profit marathon. It's now called the Virgin Money London Marathon.

Eye-popping deals like that seem to have encouraged a slew of newbies to give putting on an event a shot. Many quickly hit a wall.

Earlier this month, Runner's World Magazine reported some theme and obstacle events have failed lately, with insiders pointing to "organizer's inexperience and unanticipated costs."

Heather Wall has experienced what she says was a poorly executed event firsthand.

The über-fit Ottawa mom runs in about a dozen events per year, including the Canada Army Run in Ottawa last weekend. Two years ago she tried a local obstacle endurance event.

"It was not well organized," says Wall. "It left a bad taste in my mouth."

Among other things, she says it was not clear the event was solely a for-profit venture and she worried about the safety of runners as she believes there was not sufficient medical help on site.

"I'm glad I did it, but I would never do it again," says Wall.

A safe event is something runners like Wall keep top-of-mind.

In 2012, a man drowned at a Tough Mudder in West Virginia. The death was ruled accidental. The man's family have since filed a lawsuit.

In the mad dash to cash in, some of these events will trip up and drop out along the way. In the long run, runners like Wall will determine which events get a second wind.

The Running Room

Free clinics mean big money

Every Sunday morning the true believers gather to worship in the running temples John Stanton built.

The former two-pack-a-day smoker started the Running Room in 1984. The first store was literally a room in a house in Edmonton.

Thirty years later, there are about 1,500 staffers and 128 stores in North America.

Since the start, Stanton has preached about inclusiveness and community.

The stores generally run free clinics every Wednesday night and Sunday morning that anyone can attend. Plus, the stores offer several training clinics for $69.99 in Canada, which are sponsored by running shoe companies, such as New Balance and Saucony.

"The clinics are a little bit self-serving," Stanton freely admits in a phone interview from Edmonton. It's a mutually beneficial relationship, he says. Customers get fit and meet like-minded people and the store builds a strong relationship with customers and sells them a new pair of running shoes every now and then.

Competitors are starting to see the light. Vancouver's Lululemon Athletica Inc. and MEC (formerly Mountain Equipment Co-op) are among the growing number of retailers now offering free running groups and sponsoring running events, too.

Color Me Rad saw well over a thousand people run the five-kilometre race. The running boom has been a boon to gadget makers. Scan the photo with your Metro News app to see a gallery of the latest products making the rounds among runners. STEFANIA SECCIA/FOR METRO IN VANCOUVER FILE

New report. Forcing a pick-and-pay TV model futile, is coming anyway

Forcing TV service providers to offer their customers television channels on a pick-and-pay basis would be a waste of time, a new study says.

The C.D. Howe Institute report released Thursday says ever-changing technology will soon put viewers squarely in the driver's seat, allowing them to choose everything they watch one program at a time.

And it suggests it would be better for regulators to determine whether broadcasters should continue to be required to fund the production of Canadian content.

The study also opposes the idea of forcing new video-distribution services, such as Netflix, to pay into funds that subsidize such content.

Entitled Let the Market Decide: The Case Against Mandatory Pick-and-Pay, the study comes as the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission conducts a comprehensive review of how consumers get their TV programming and how they pay for it.

The Harper government has been promoting the pick-and-pay model as good for consumers.

Is Bash bug worse than Heartbleed?

Uh-oh. Experts are divided over whether the latest security flaw will cause more chaos than the Heartbleed bug

New warnings are emerging of a security flaw known as the "Bash" bug, which cyber experts say may pose a serious threat to devices using Unix-based operating systems such as Linux and Mac OS X.

Beyond computers, devices ranging from home Internet routers to systems used to run factory floors and power plants to medical equipment could be affected.

The Department of Homeland Security's Computer Emergency Readiness Team in the U.S. issued a warning about the vulnerability this week. Experts are divided over whether the bug could pose a bigger threat than the Heartbleed computer security flaw discovered earlier this year.

Security company Rapid7 said that while the vulnerability "looks pretty awful at first glance," hackers will not be able to exploit most systems running the affected Bash software. The Heartbleed bug exploited a key piece of security technology used by hundreds of thousands of websites. For more than two years before it was discovered, the flaw exposed passwords and other sensitive data to hackers who could steal that information.

The reason the Bash bug could be worse than Heartbleed is because it gives the attacker a bigger advantage than Heartbleed did, said Tod Beardsley, engineering manager at Rapid7. With Heartbleed, attackers could get an information leak. With the Bash bug, they can get "remote code execution," a way to take control of the affected device to install programs or run commands, he said. The bug is rated a maximum 10 out of 10 for its impact and ease of exploitability by the Common Vulnerability Scoring System, an industry standard for assessing how bad security flaws are.

Great apes enjoy harp music at Minnesota zoo every month

Harpist Terri Tacheny long enjoyed taking her young daughters to Como Zoo in St. Paul, Minn., except for the Primate House, where she thought the gorillas, orangutans and monkeys seemed a little lethargic.

Her solution: A little music.

Now Tacheny, a zoo volunteer, plays once a month for an appreciative audience that ambles down to the barrier as soon as Tacheny begins setting up her beautifully carved wooden harp. She's been doing it for nearly a decade.

As the shimmering sounds of Tacheny's harp drift through the leafy zoo, a male gorilla stares through the fence at the musician, then chews contentedly on vegetation. Families stop to snap pictures.

Quoted

"I don't speak gorilla, but there's a gorilla purr that occurs when I begin to play. And that's their happy sound."

Harpist Terri Tacheny

A therapeutic harpist, Tacheny plays for hospital patients to help them deal with pain and anxiety.

She thought if the soothing sounds helped to calm humans, it would work for the primates too.

Tami Murphy, a zookeeper at Como, said Tacheny has played for all the animals at the zoo. Some animals appear ambivalent, Murphy said, but the harp music "seems to be a really calming thing for the apes to listen."

Tacheny says she's never gotten a negative review from her ape audience. "I've never had anything thrown at me," she said.

Denzel Washington returns to the action genre with The Equalizer. Scan this photo using the Metro News app to see the movie's fast-paced trailer. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

Washington plays a home improvement store worker by day, righter of wrongs by night. He's a former black ops commando trying to leave his violent ways in the past but just when he thought that part of his life was over, the Russian mob leans on him because he tried to protect a young woman (Chloë Grace Moretz) from her violent pimp. When he singlehandedly wipes out the East Coast wing of the Russian mob, Teddy (Marton Csokas) — an enforcer from Moscow — arrives to put an end to McCall's one-man search for justice.

- Richard: ●●●●
- Mark: ●●●●

The Equalizer. Denzel Washington's acting chops carry this thriller about a man with a regular life who is pretty talented in using tools as weapons of mass destruction

Richard: Mark, The Equalizer is more elegant than Liam Neeson's recent action movies but less viscerally satisfying.

All the elements of Neeson's Eurotrash thrillers are in place — tattooed bad guys and the “seasoned” hero with a “special set of skills” — but the pace is much slower. The point of the story is that McCall equalizes situations, using his talents to help the downtrodden, but it takes about 30 minutes before any settling of scores happens.

We meet McCall, learn about his orderly life but we don't learn anything about his past. He's Denzel and ergo, a badass, but the first half-hour of this movie could have snapped things up a bit by illuminating his past.

Mark: Richard, withholding information must be what passes for suspense in this thriller.

But I can accept a slow burn off the top if the rest of the movie ignites.

But the plot and tone of the movie is standard stuff, as you say. What lifts the rote material into the stratosphere is Denzel, who is such a good actor we forget we're watching an expensive Steven Seagal flick.

RC: It is a slow burn that does build some tension, and by the time McCall unleashes hell on the Russian mobsters, it comes as a bit of a catharsis. Now the movie is rolling!

Except that it isn't. It takes ages for McCall to open another can of whoop-ass. Instead director Antoine Fuqua has elected to gradually build up to a wild showdown in a massive hardware store.

Who knew those places were so dangerous?

The climax is tense and inventive — apparently there is no home improvement device that cannot be turned into a WMD — but it is a more standard blockbuster-movie ending than you might expect from a movie so stingy with the action in the first hour.

MB: Homeowners ... killing homeowners, as the jingle sorta goes.

I liked the set piece at the end; it was very well directed, and I have no quibble with the technical virtuosity of the movie.

Denzel's taciturn hero is mysterious and engaging. But when I thought about it, all of the hero's efforts to eliminate the Russian mob in Boston would only result in the ascendancy of the Irish mob. And what's Bill Pullman doing in the movie with three lines?

Time to fire his agent?

RC: Pullman did have the nicer house, though, so I guess that counts for something.

Overall it's a good movie and Denzel is, as always, charismatic and interesting, but as he says, paraphrasing Hemingway, if “the old man gotta be the old man,” then The Equalizer gotta be more of an action movie to be completely satisfying.

MB: I might say the violence was often gratuitous, but there's not much of a movie without it.

Stars. David Bowie

Bowie is the man who elevated his music to what can only be described as an art form. Driven by an entirely deeper dynamic than most pop artists, David Bowie inhabits a very special world of extraordinary sounds and endless vision. Unwilling to stay on the treadmill of rock legend and avoiding the descent into ever-demeaning circles of cliché, Bowie writes and performs what he wants, when he wants.

Helberg's Paris flick has release date

Simon Helberg of The Big Bang Theory writes, co-directs and co-stars in the upcoming real-life intercontinental love story We'll Never Have Paris — destined for a January 22 debut.

That date is for a limited theatrical release in advance of digital VOD availability shortly after, allowing audiences to watch Helberg's Quinn attempt to win back long-term girlfriend Devon (Melanie Lynskey) when he mistakenly ends the relationship and she leaves for France.

Indeed, Helberg and Jocelyn Towne confess that the film's calamitous proposal tale is based on their own retrospectively hilarious courtship.

Joining Helberg and Lynskey in the cast are Maggie Grace (The Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn, Taken trilogy), Alfred Molina (An Education), Jason Ritter (Parenthood) and Zachary Quinto (Star Trek Into Darkness).

Shot on location in New York and the French capital, We'll Never Have Paris enjoyed a tour of U.S. film festivals earlier this year, starting at South by Southwest in March before jetting off to the Edinburgh International Film Fest in June; the distribution deal with revitalized MGM subsidiary Orion is its first route towards a wider audience. AFP

Genesis Rodriguez is a pretty big nerd

Tusk. Actress says she has a passion for building robots and welding things

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Geeks of the world, you're about to fall in love with Genesis Rodriguez. There's no point in resisting. The actress, appearing in Kevin Smith's totally insane Tusk, used to be part of an all-girl BattleBots team. Her words, not ours.

"We were an all-girls robotics team. We looked like we were kick-ass, cool-ass girls who had ribbons in their hair but were like, 'We're going to kick your ass!'" Rodriguez tells Metro. "We did competitions, like national competitions. We went to the Kennedy Space Center, we went to a convention in Oklahoma. I was involved with the pneumatics of the robot. I wasn't so much into getting the precise degree and cuts of angles and things

— I was a welder."

Yes, welding. Rodriguez thinks women have the edge when it comes to that particular trade. "I think girls make better welders than men because we take time with our tacks and our welds, we're detailed and we make it look pretty," she says with a laugh. "It's fun. Just the smell of it is just ... I love the oil. The light, it's hypnotizing. You could be there all day just looking at it. It's kind of cool. But yeah, building robots was super-awesome."

Rodriguez acknowledges that when people first look at her, they might not immediately think "welding" and "robots," but that's their loss. "It's not something that you'd expect, but it was just a fun time. You're actually thinking something in your head and then executing it and actually seeing it done. I think it's just a really cool school program that should be promoted more. And you're having fun with your friends and working on a crocodile robot. How cool is that?"

So what was it her kick-ass team created? "Basically, it was really a tough robot, a crocodile," she explains. "It was built at an angle, so it would come under you and just chomp you down into pieces and break you down. So even if you're a bigger robot in size, it could just scoop you from under — trip it and kill it."

And if robots aren't enough for you, she's also an avid Shark Week aficionado, something that helped her build more appreciation for the massive beast at the centre of Tusk, the walrus. "I was watching Shark Week this last time, and I realized that sharks do not mess with walruses. They don't," she says.

Spike Lee. Filmmaker picks up Pioneer award at Montreal black film fest

Spike Lee has been described as one of the angriest filmmakers in the United States, but he jokingly suggested Wednesday he was worried about a bit of ire coming his way during a news conference in Montreal.

"We're not going to talk about the Rangers beating the Habs last year, are we?" said the diehard sports fan, referring to the Montreal Canadiens' elimination from last season's Stanley Cup playoffs at the hands of his hometown New York team.

"We're not bringing that up?"

Lee didn't have to worry. He appeared at the Montreal International Black Film Festival where he was to be presented with the event's first Pioneer award by P.K. Subban, the Habs co-captain.

"He's a great player," Lee said before the award ceremony, adding he watched Subban play in New York last season and waved at him during the pre-game skate.

"I've noticed a lot more players of colour in the National Hockey League. The Rangers need to get one."

Spike Lee cracked jokes about the New York Rangers beating the Montreal Canadiens during his visit to Montreal Wednesday. THE CANADIAN PRESS

The ceremony was to precede the Canadian premiere of Lee's new film Da Sweet Blood of Jesus, a romantic horror comedy.

The event coincides with the 25th anniversary of Lee's landmark film Do the Right Thing, about racial tensions in Brooklyn.

Lee acknowledged a lot has changed in the last 25 years.

"Twenty-five years ago, I would have never thought there would be an African-American president," he said.

"That's something that happened, so there have been many great developments. But there are more African-Americans who are in poverty now than there were back 25 years ago and police are still killing black people."

He also pointed out that while there are more black stars, "black people are not taking over Hollywood."

Lee, who is credited with helping revolutionize modern black cinema, said there is still a need for more diversity — including more women, Asians, and Hispanics — on TV and behind the scenes in TV and movies.

Mary-Kate swaps Cartier rock for band of gold, leading to marry chase

Guys, we really dropped the ball on this one. Everyone's been so focused on George Clooney getting married that we may have missed Mary-Kate Olsen's wedding altogether. The 28-year-old actress, designer and Wonder Twin was spotted this week in the Hamptons with her fiancé, 45-year-old French banker Olivier Sarkozy, both of them sporting what look like gold wedding bands — and the massive Cartier diamond ring Olsen used to wear was nowhere in sight. Which begs the question: Is there such a thing as a hobo chic wedding dress? And what self-respecting billionaire hangs out in the Hamptons after Labour Day?

Miles Teller delivers two wildly Divergent tales

Looks like Miles Teller is engaging in a little bit of he said ... he also said. The Spectacular Now star told W magazine that he felt "dead inside" while filming Divergent, which didn't sit very well with fans of the franchise. "I didn't have an interesting part, and I'd taken the film for business reasons," he told the magazine. And you know who else wasn't very happy with the stuff Miles Teller said? Miles Teller. After his rep did some damage control, Teller took to Twitter Miles Teller can't believe Miles Teller said that. I hope they never run into each other, or it could get ugly.

himself. "I've never done a movie for 'business' reasons. I'm proud to be a part of Divergent franchise," he tweeted. Basically,

Someone was feeding Lohan lines? Say it ain't so

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Depending on who you ask, Lindsay Lohan either had a great first night or a terrible first night during her London stage debut. Previews started this week for David Mamet's Speed-the-Plow, and the first review, from the Daily Beast, is not terribly kind. "On the first night of previews, a work-in-progress feel is to be expected," Nico Hines writes. "But halfway through the second act of Speed-the-Plow, the audience was openly laughing at Lohan's struggle to grasp Mamet's sharp, trademark dialogue." Some audience members had fun with the gaffes, like Rafay Agha, who tweeted, "Major kudos to the woman who was feeding Lindsay Lohan her lines from offstage." But a tweet from one of her fans tells a different story. "According to all attendees of (Speed-the-Plow), Lindsay Lohan owned her part. As if doubt were plausible," writes Peyton Pittman. I just don't know who to believe anymore.

David Bowie

What's a little fur play between friends like Bowie and Jagger?

Turns out the compulsion to make everything fur-lined in the 1970s was more about function than form — at least at David Bowie's place. According to a new biography by Wendy Leigh, Bowie and his then-wife, Angela, had a four-foot-deep, fur-lined play area in their London flat affectionately dubbed "the pit" that was used for the some spectacular feats of sexual strength. The Bowies "used to have the most amazing orgies at Oakley Street. Everybody f—ing everybody in the pit. Mick Jagger used to come there and be involved with sexual things," Leigh writes. To be fair, though, I feel like Jagger could get business cards printed up that list his profession as "involved with sexual things."

Apple Crisp Muffins.
Fall is the perfect time to incorporate this fruit into your cooking

RICARDO COOKS

The smell of baked apples — plus cinnamon and brown sugar — is simply amazing.

Want to fill your house with that delicious goodness?

Bake up a batch of my Apple Crisp Muffins, which deliver all the flavours of a classic crisp in a breakfast-friendly muffin.

Topping

1. In a bowl, combine the rolled oats, brown sugar, flour and melted butter. Set aside.

2. In a skillet, sauté the apples in the butter for about 5 minutes. Allow to cool.

Muffins

1. Preheat the oven to 350 F (180 C). Line a 12-well muffin pan with paper liners.

2. In another bowl, combine the flour, baking powder and cinnamon. Set aside.

3. In another bowl, cream butter and sugar with mixer until light and fluffy. Add eggs and vanilla. Beat until smooth.

4. With a wooden spoon, stir dry ingredients into butter and sugar mixture alternately with the milk. Add the diced apples. Spoon the batter into the wells.

5. Place 3 pieces of uncooked apples on each muffin and top with the oatmeal mixture. Press lightly with your fingers.

6. Bake in the middle of the oven for about 20 to 25 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in the centre of a muffin comes out clean. FOLLOW RICARDO ON SOCIAL MEDIA AND ON RICARDOCUISINE.COM OR SUBSCRIBE TO HIS MAGAZINE'S UP-COMING ENGLISH EDITION, WHICH LAUNCHED THIS SEPTEMBER!

Myths of French grapes

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy liquidassets@eastlink.ca

French wines have an image problem.

No matter how closely associated the country is with fermented grape juice, it struggles to shake the myth that it only makes wine for rich experts and not the average oenophile.

While its wines can get pricey, those big guns make up a paltry percentage of its total output.

You can easily find wine from France for the same price as your fave bottle from Australia or Italy.

Other misconceptions about French wines are that their labels are hard to understand, their flavours are too aggressive and they're only meant to be drunk with food.

Though there may be a wee bit of truth to all three complaints, don't let that intimidate you.

Ripe, balanced and fruit-forward, the wines from the southern regions are a great introduction (or reintroduction) to France.

The 2012 Petites Folies Merlot-Cabernet ($15.95 - $16.99) takes a page from the New World handbook with juicy, red berry aromas and a thick, jammy flavour flow worthy of your best rack of lamb recipe. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SHOP FOR ORGANICS WITH CONFIDENCE

IT'S A GREAT TIME TO LEARN BENEFITS

Organic Week takes place this year across Canada from Sept. 20-28, giving us a chance to participate in the largest annual celebration of organic food, farming, and products across the country.

Presented by the Canadian Health Food Association (CHFA), the Canadian Organic Growers (COG), and the Canada Organic Trade Association (COTA), this weeklong focus is an opportunity to learn about the importance of organic food.

"The goal of Organic Week is to get as many Canadians as possible involved and learning about the benefits of organic farming and its positive impact on the environment," says Helen Long, president of CHFA.

From the sunny orchards of the Okanagan Valley, to the red potato fields of Prince Edward Island, through the seemingly boundless tall grass in the Prairies, into the mild-weathered vineyards of the Niagara Peninsula, and through the picturesque blueberry fields of Lake Saint-Jean, Que., Canada is blessed with a rich and diverse land that yields a bountiful harvest at the end of a short, but warm growing season.

What better time than fall to enjoy and appreciate the bounty of our land? Apples, pears, and plums are all ripened to perfection and contain many disease-fighting nutrients. This annual harvest provides us with many locally-grown, organic options and Canadians say they are making the effort to choose organic produce as they look to protect the environment, their bodies and support local farmers.

Many of us are increasingly aware of the importance of choosing food that is grown organically, without the use of pesticides, herbicides, hormones, or antibiotics. These farming practices are based on holistic methods that contribute to the improvement of biodiversity, good soil health, and ecological balance. When buying organic foods, you are not only investing in your health, but you are also supporting sustainable, environmentally friendly practices and animal welfare.

"Canadians want the peace of mind that our food has been grown without synthetic pesticides and fertilizers," Long says. "In Canada, organic food must meet all food regulations as well as additional standards and inspections. Having these rules in place makes 'organic' a trustworthy brand that allows us to shop with confidence."

This year during Organic Week, hundreds of celebrations are being organized by communities across the country. Activities include everything from pickling workshops, to farm tours, organic food and drink tastings, and much more. There are many opportunities to participate and you can find out more online at organicweek.ca and chfa.ca.

Food & Wine Show makes for a perfect event pairing

Fresh-picked basil, zucchini, eggplants, all colours of peppers, tomatoes, onions and garlic, deliciously cured meats and cheeses, freshly made breads and aromatic treats — all can be found in an Italian marketplace. Indeed, fresh produce and local culinary specialties ready-made in a lively, social atmosphere are characteristics of any old world market. Held weekly in many towns, market days are special occasions.

"You go to the market and see what's best, what's in season, what came in special today and you base your evening meal on what you find," — a tradition many Italian chefs follow to this day, incorporating local produce and old family recipes into their dishes.

Taste of the Italian Harvest: Food & Wine Show, now in its second year, combines the simple pleasures and lively ambiance of the marketplace with the casual elegance of a walk-around food and wine tasting, in the tradition of Little Italy's La Vendemmia. The all-inclusive, low-admission price means no reaching for the wallet once inside the luxurious Grand Ballroom of Sala San Marco Banquet & Conference Centre on Preston Street.

Restaurateurs and food and beverage purveyors from across the region offer bounteous samples; pasta-making demonstrations (you can take some home), music, wine and beer complete the experience. The event runs from 2 to 5 p.m. this Sunday, Sept. 28.

Leave your produce basket behind but bring your appetite and a non-perishable item for the Ottawa Food Bank. Portions can be generous, like an Italian home-cooked meal.

NutriChem's specialty is custom-made supplements

Buying local food is a common practice for many individuals. It helps contribute to the local communities, the local economy, and also boosts consumer empowerment. The concept of local purchasing can also be applied to health supplements.

Ottawa's very own health gem, NutriChem, strives on promoting optimal health through good-quality supplements and custom-made supplement formulas. NutriChem is composed of a compounding pharmacy, retail store, and a lab in the west end, and a smaller retail store and clinic in the east end of Ottawa.

"We are very selective with the products we sell, we make our own supplements which are free of fillers and common allergens. We also try to find local and organic products when possible," says store manager Kate Pollon-MacLeod.

NutriChem is known for their custom-made supplement formulas. The process starts with blood and urine tests from which hormones, vitamin status, brain chemicals, gut bacteria, and more are evaluated. A NutriChem clinician then goes over the results with the individual and formulates a custom-made supplement formula based on their own biochemistry.

"Our custom formulas are made in our Ottawa laboratory and contain no fillers or preservatives," explains Pollon-MacLeod.

NutriChem also carries their own supplement line that is completely gluten-free.

"We only make supplements in which the health benefits are supported by clinical research," says Pollon-MacLeod. "People enjoy coming to NutriChem because they know they are getting the best quality supplements."

NutriChem's bestsellers are their Phosphogabamine for anxiety and Tyro-Trypt for depression. The local business has been a big advocate for mental health and is aiming to change mental health care in Ottawa.

Learning to get up after a fall

Dusting it off. Much like the Redblacks, Ottawa's new defensive back must learn from past errors

Brandon McDonald and the Ottawa Redblacks have a lot in common, as both are looking to learn from their mistakes and move forward.

The Redblacks (1-10) want to put last week's disastrous finish against the Saskatchewan Roughriders behind them and find a way to win another football game. Ottawa's last win was July 18th against Toronto.

Despite leading much of the game, the Redblacks were forced to deal with their eighth straight loss, 35-32, as they continue to make costly mistakes.

A pass interference penalty moved the Riders to the Redblacks' one-yard line with 54 seconds left in regulation, allowing Saskatchewan to score the game-tying touchdown. Ottawa then had a potential game-tying field goal blocked in overtime.

Ottawa hosts the Montreal Alouettes (4-8) Friday night and remain positive despite last week's disappointment.

"We knew it was a short week and sometimes that's a blessing in disguise," said Ottawa head coach Rick Campbell. "We're limited in our preparation because it was a five-day week with travel, but it doesn't allow you to sit around and dwell on things and it's an opportunity to go out there. It's going to be a sold out crowd and it could be a fun night around here. We just have to hold up our end of the bargain."

McDonald, who was signed 10 days ago, knows all about the need to put the past behind and focus on what lies ahead.

The 29-year-old defensive back was forced to accept that a future in the NFL was no longer an option and any chance of resuming his professional football career could ultimately lie in Ottawa.

McDonald spent six years in the NFL, but when no one came calling and he sat out the entire 2013 season, the Collins, Miss., native knew he had some tough choices to make.

It was either walk away from the game completely or look north, and with a competitive fire still burning, McDonald made his decision.

Earlier this season, McDonald spent time on both the B.C. Lions and Calgary Stampeders practice rosters, but failed to make a strong enough impression to crack the game-day lineup.

Friday night McDonald will finally get his opportunity to put his skills on display as he lines up for the Redblacks.

"I know I can still play at a high level and I know I still got plenty of years left in the tank so I don't want to finish until I'm done," said McDonald. "I just want to play. Football is what I love to do; it's what I've always loved to do."

Week 14 pick

If expansion Ottawa (1-10) expects to contend for an East Division playoff spot, then this is a must-win. The Redblacks came close against Saskatchewan, scoring a season-high 32 points. But again they couldn't finish as the Riders outscored Ottawa 15-3 in the fourth quarter with backup Sunseri to force overtime. Montreal (4-8) is tied for first in the East having won three of its last four, including 31-15 last weekend over short-handed Calgary. Jonathan Crompton threw for 220 yards and two TDs while Brandon Whitaker ran for 90 yards to take the CFL rushing lead (695 yards). The Redblacks' offensive production versus Saskatchewan is encouraging but their eight-game losing streak suggests Ottawa's still learning to win.

Patrick Roy won't rest on his laurels

NHL. Avalanche head coach pushing for his team to improve despite stiff competition

After putting up 112 points and winning the Jack Adams Trophy as coach of the year in his first season behind an NHL bench, what can Patrick Roy possibly do for an encore?

Even a coach with Roy's self-confidence doesn't see his second season with the gifted young Colorado Avalanche going that well.

"There are a lot of coaches that are better than me, but I believe I'll continue to learn," Roy said Thursday. "And the worst part of this is, I'm sure I'm going to be a better coach along the way and I'm probably never going to win the Jack Adams again."

"It was a great year. It was fun, but now it's behind us."

The Avalanche are on a two-power after his Hall of Fame playing career ended.

Roy was lured away last season to become head coach and vice-president of hockey operations for the Avalanche, who he helped win two Stanley Cups after his bitter parting with the Canadiens in 1996.

The fiery Roy's impact was felt immediately on a team stacked with budding stars like Matt Duchene, Gabriel Landeskog and 2013 first overall draft pick Nathan MacKinnon.

The Avs finished second overall in the Western Conference and tied a franchise record with 52 victories, although they lost in seven games to Minnesota in the first round of the playoffs.

"We're playing in a tough conference, and it's pretty easy to be humble in that conference," he said. "With the quality of the teams, you know that to make the playoffs you have to be outstanding all year." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Datsyuk expected to miss 4-5 weeks

Pavel Datsyuk is expected to miss the start of the regular season because of a separated right shoulder.

Detroit general manager Ken Holland said his star centre will miss four to five weeks. The 36-year-old Datsyuk was injured in the Red Wings' exhibition opener at Pittsburgh on Monday night when checked into the glass by Penguins defenceman Rob Scuderi. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"The domestic violence issues, they're few and far between (in the league), but they're just enough to raise a serious awareness. I think that's the good that will come out of it."

Retired quarterback Brett Favre believes that the NFL will survive a turbulent month and hopes that the recent issues with domestic violence will raise awareness about the problem.

MLB. Jays fail to complete 4-game sweep of Mariners

Logan Morrison hit a three-run homer and added a solo shot to power the Seattle Mariners to a 7-5 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays on Thursday at Rogers Centre.

The win ended the Mariners' five-game losing skid and kept their slim playoff hopes alive. Seattle (84-75) entered play three games behind the Kansas City Royals and Oakland Athletics in the race for the two American League wild-card spots.

The Blue Jays (81-78) were eliminated from post-season contention earlier in the week. Manager John Gibbons gave several regulars the day off and inserted some of the team's late-season callups into the lineup.

Archangel helped me accomplish my dream.

I was having problems conceiving a child, 44 and never able to have a normal pregnancy. Someone suggested Archangel and that he might be able to help.
